One Health Conference - Rome 26-27 November 2018

This scientific Conference is organised in the framework of the MediLabSecure (<http://www.medilabsecure.com/>) initiative and aims at strengthening One Health implementation for the prevention and control of arbovirus infections in the Mediterranean and Sahel Regions through the coordination and collaboration between human and veterinarian public health officers.

The Conference is organised by the Italian National Institute for Health (Istituto Superiore di Sanità) with the support of IZSAM - Istituto Zooprofilattico Sperimentale dell'Abruzzo e del Molise "G. Caporale".

It is expected the participation of 22 countries (Albania, Algeria, Armenia, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Burkina Faso, Egypt, FYR of Macedonia, Georgia, Jordan, Kosovo¹, Lebanon, Libya, Mali, Mauritania, Montenegro, Morocco, Niger, Palestine, Senegal, Serbia, Tunisia, Turkey), represented by public health authorities from human and animal health sectors.

Six out of the ten threats to global health listed by WHO in 2018 are issues occurring at the human, animal and environmental interface and Arthropod-Borne Diseases (including arbovirus infections) account for 17% of the estimated burden related to infectious diseases (WHO, 2014). Some of these threats have not only a direct impact on the health of animals and people, but also on the impoverishment of households and countries (by affecting food security, trade, migration etc.).

After a framing session on One Health, its added value and examples of benefits of the integrated surveillance of the arbovirus infections, recommendations from the Medilabsecure Strategic Document will be presented and the participants will share their national and cross-border strategies, lessons learned and constraints and will discuss the main needs and gaps to be addressed to strengthen surveillance and control of arbovirus infections.
